TUESDAY, APRIL 13. 1736.

Yesterday arrived a Mail from France, as did the Day before one from Holland.

Rome, March 13. O. S.

THE violent Proceedings of the Spanish recruiting Officers have at length quite tired out the Patience of the Inhabitants of this City. One of those Kidnappers, who was committed last Week to Prison, was no sooner set at Liberty, but his Brethren became the more bold and daring, and they dispersed themselves in such Numbers through all Parts of the City, that it was dangerous for a Man, tho' well dressed, to stir abroad at Night. Was he a Scholar, an Abbe, a Labourer, a Merchant, married or not married, it was all one to them. If he had the Misfortune to fall into their Clutches, he was seized, and dragged to one of their Offices; by which Means above five or six hundred Men have been made away with for about a Fortnight past. The Master misses his Scholars, the Father his Son, the Son his Father, and the Women are deploring the Loss of their Husbands or their Lovers. If any one had the good Luck to escape out of their Hands, and fall in their Way again, tho' it was at Noon-day, they took him up for a Defenter, as happened last Tuesday in the Square Navona, where one of the Spanish Officers meeting with a Man who had been impressed, and afterwards made his Escape, he took him by the Collar, and would have carried him off; but the Mob gathered together, threw a Shower of Stones at him, and made him fly for his Life.

But this was only a Preamble to what happened here Yesterday in the Afternoon, when some People crying out for Help, from a Window of a House that joins to the Farnese Palace, it was immediately made known that they were pressed Men, the Rumor of which flying thro' the City as quick as Lightning, the Populace rose in an Instant, and came to the Spot, where they broke open the Door, delivered the Prisoners, plundered the House, and burnt the Goods in the Middle of the Square. The Multitude might well be compared to a Torrent gushing thro' the Streets after a violent Storm. The general Cry every where was, Down with the Spaniards; but by good Luck the Mob had no Weapons but Stones, except a few Fire Arms, which they took out of two Gunsmiths Shops. Being at least five or six thousand strong, they attacked the Farnese Palace, broke all the Windows, and dashed to Pieces the Arms of the Infante Don Carlos, which were erected over the Gate of the Palace. The Government, to suppress this mad Rabble, sent out the Marshal's Men, and two hundred of the Pope's Foot Soldiers and Cuirassiers marched into the neighbouring Streets, to hinder their Number from increasing; but neither the Marshal's Men, nor Foot Soldiers, nor Cuirassiers, were regarded, inasmuch that of the former several were wounded, and one was killed. From hence they went and attacked the Palace of his Catholic Majesty, where resides his Ambassador Cardinal Acquaviva. A Spanish Officer, by Birth a Maltese, advancing to appease the Mob, had his Brains beat out with Stones. From the Farnese Square they went and besieged the Palace Corfini, where they broke the Windows, and vented a hundred thousand Reproaches against that illustrious Family. The Rage of the Populace being now somewhat abated, Part of them advanced to the Palace of the Count de Harrach, and Part to the Palace of the Cardinal del Giudici, crying incessantly, Long live the Emperor, and down with the Spaniards. There they staid above half an Hour, calling out for Arms to extirpate the Enemies of the House of Austria; but neither of those two Ministers giving them any Answer, about an Hour after Sun-set they separated.

There are, to be sure, no less than two or three hundred Spanish Officers and Soldiers, but they are all as it were vanished, being not to be seen now by Day-light, or, if they do appear any where, 'tis without their Cockades. Letters are continually sending from the Palace of Spain to the Palace called Corfini, and from thence to Monte Cavallo, the Ministers of these Palaces acting in Concert, to prevent, if possible, the Storm from breaking out again To-morrow, it being Sunday, when the working People will have shut up their Shops. The Cardinal del Giudici, and the Count de Harrach, have forbid their Domesticks, and the German Officers who are here, from having any thing to do in this Quarrel, upon Pain of Death.

P. S. Just as the Post is going off, the Storm is rising again upon the Square of Spain, where the Populace is assembling together in great Numbers, and nothing is heard in the Streets but Vows of Revenge, of which 'tis apprehended we shall have but a melancholy Account to send by the next Post.

Dantzick, March 26. O. S. The Senate has nominated two Deputies to meet King Stanislaus upon the Frontiers, when he passes that Way, in order to wish him a good Journey, and to desire him to remember his repeated Promises of making us amends for the Damage we have suffered upon his Account. The Inhabitants of Koningsberg seem'd to be very much concerned at his Departure from thence. The Day before he went away, he gave a splendid Entertainment to several Polish Lords and Gentlemen, as well as to General Katté the Governor, the principal Officers of the Garison, and the Magistrates; he presented the Governor with a rich Sword adorned with Diamonds; he distributed fine Gold Medals to the principal Citizens of Koningsberg, as well as to the Magistrates and Officers of the Garison, to perpetuate the Memory of his Residence in their Town; and he bestowed a considerable Sum among the Domesticks that attended him in the Castle, and the Company of Soldiers that was appointed for his Guard. That Prince continues still at Angerbourg, where 'tis said he is to stay till he has settled every thing relating to the Disposal of his Estate in Poland, the Sale of which, 'tis said, Count Ossolinski has proposed to the Court of Warlaw. — They write from Revel, that great Preparations are making there for the Reception of the Czarina, who is expected there next Month, from whence 'tis said, that she is to go to Riga to confer with the King of Poland, and that she will spend the Summer at Moscow.

Petersburg, March 14. O. S. We have Advice by a Courier from the Governor of Derbent, that the Tartars, Persians and other Vagabonds, who were assembled to the Number of 30,000 Horse upon the Frontiers of Georgia, were entirely disbanded, upon the News that Thamas Kouli Kan, the Regent of Persia, had detach'd 20,000 Men from his Army to reduce them. The Leader of that Body gives himself out to be that Great Man's near Relation, and was excited by the Turks to make this Attempt, in order to engage the Persians to take Arms against him. We have Advice by the same Express, that Kouli Kan having provided himself with a Train of 180 Cannon, had resolv'd to attack the Turks in their Intrenchments. — Her Imperial Majesty in Council having examined some Dispatches brought to Court by another Courier, an Express is sent to the Count de Munich, with Orders to break off the Negotiations with the Turks and Tartars, and to force them to give a more honourable Satisfaction than what they now propose. Mean time the said Count, whose Army consists of 100,000 Men, regular Troops, besides 60,000 Cossacks and Calmucks, has settled his Head Quarters at Fort St. Anne, a few Leagues from Asoph, and 'tis reported, that the said General has Orders to undertake the Siege of that Place forthwith, in Case that the Negotiations between Russia and the Porte should miscarry.

L O N D O N.

Letters from Italy say, that the Corsican Malecontents have not only taken the Posts of Paludella, Moriani and Campo-Loro; but have obliged the Genoese at the Town of Aleria, beyond the River Tavignan, to retire from thence, and to leave 4 Brass Cannon behind them, besides a considerable Quantity of Arms and Ammunition. The Senate of Genoa has offer'd the Emperor a considerable Sum of Money for the Purchase of the Territory of Serravalla, which borders upon the Milanese and the State of Genoa, because thro' this Territory the Republick will be enabled to establish a Passage for their Subjects into Lombardy, without their being obliged to pass, as they must otherwise do, through the Territories of the King of Sardinia, now that the Tortonese is yielded to that Prince.

On the 15th of last Month 100 Transports, with the Spanish Troops, under Convoy of two Spanish Men of War, sailed from Leghorn with a fair Wind for Barcelona, where a second Convoy is also soon expected from Tuscany, from whence there is to be a third Draught made for Naples. Mean time the first Column of the Spanish Cavalry has already passed by Genoa, in order to return home by the Way of France; and the Spaniards have likewise evacuated Placentia, in order to go to Parma, and to set out with the Troops there for their Embarkment at Leghorn. The King Don Carlos has sent Orders to the Commandant at Parma, to deliver that City to the German Officer, on Condition that he give a Bond for the free Passage of all the Artillery and Ammunition. At the same time the Queen of Spain has sent her Letter of Attorney to her Mother the Dutchess Dorothea, to receive all her Rents which are in the State of Parma and Placentia.

The Spanish Garison has evacuated Mirandola, and the Imperialists have taken Possession of it. There is a great Number of French Officers at Milan, where they cut such fine Figures, play so deep, and are so profuse of their Money at all publick Diversions, that 'tis said they are in a fair Way to leave behind them in Italy not only all the Money they brought with them into that Country, but the best Part of what they have raised there by Contributions.

There are some Letters by the Dutch Mail which say, that the Ottoman Porte has found Means to stir up the Great Mogul against Kouli Kan, and to engage him to form a League to stop the Conquests of the Persians. It appears there was not the least Foundation for the late Report of a new Revolution at Constantinople. Prince William of Hesse Cassel has been acknowledged Sovereign of the County of Hanau by all the Tribunals there, and a Treaty is on foot for admitting the Pretensions of the Landgrave of Hesse D'Armstadt to that Succession. The Princess of Saxe Gotha proposed to set out for Great Britain the latter End of last Week.

There is Advice that the Commandant at Buenos Ayres in Mexico, believing that a War was actually commenced betwixt his Master and the King of Portugal, had seized the Colony of San Sacramento, and two Ships belonging to his Portuguese Majesty; but 'tis not doubted that this Affair will be accommodated between the two Crowns.

The Marquis de Monti is every Day expected at Paris by the Way of Hamburgh.

The Lord Delawar, who arrived at Gotha the 24th of March, about 8 in the Evening, was received with great Marks of Distinction and no little Grandeur, being conducted to a fine House which the Duke had fitted up for him, and attended by 6 Gentlemen of the Court, who are to be obedient to his Orders as long as he stays there. He is also serv'd by several of the Duke's Pages and Domesticks; and besides the other grand Preparations that are making for the Ceremony of his espousing the Princess Augustina, as Proxy for the Prince of Wales, there is to be a very splendid Feast, at which the chief Healths are to be drunk, with a Discharge of 24 Cannon that are planted on the Ramparts of the Town, and 27 other Pieces planted in the Court before the Castle.

Wednesday last John Brit was executed at Melton in Suffolk, for the Murder of his Wife, which, it seems, he did not design; but being highly provoked by her Tongue, as all his Neighbours agreed, beat her so immoderately in his Passion, that she died in two or three Days. He buried her in a little Time, but Notice having been taken by some of the Neighbours how he had beaten her, it began to be talked abroad, and in a Day or two after Burial the Corpse was taken up, and viewed by Surgeons, who declared she died of the Bruises; and the Coroner's Inquest sat upon it. The Man owned that he killed her, for which he said he was very sorry, and much lamented his giving Way to Passion, which he advised all that attended his Execution to guard against.

Last Saturday George Chandler was executed at Ipiwich, for Horse-stealing.

The Assassin, who murdered his Master some Months ago at one of the Inns of Paris, left his Body stuffed into a Cask, and then made off with his Money, Bills, and Effects, has been apprehended in the Country of Cleves, and delivered up to proper Persons, who are carrying him to Paris.
